What Is Referencing?

Referencing is the method of acknowledging sources that you use to gather information, ideas, or direct quotations in your academic work. It's the system through which you give credit to the original creators of content, whether they are books, journal articles, websites, or multimedia. This practice is essential for distinguishing your own thoughts from those of others, and it helps readers trace the origins of your information. At Otago.ac.nz, referencing follows specific styles such as APA, MLA, Chicago, or Harvard, depending on the discipline or instructor's preference. These formatting guidelines dictate how citations appear both within the text and in the reference list or bibliography at the end of your document.

Chicago/Turabian Style

Chicago style offers two systems: Notes and Bibliography and Author-Date. It's commonly used in history, literature, and some social sciences. The Notes and Bibliography system utilizes footnotes or endnotes, which is different from the author-date styles.

Mostly used in language and literature studies, MLA emphasizes concise in-text citations with a Works
