Exploring their stories reveals not just the thrilling race itself but also the resilience, ingenuity, and determination of two extraordinary journalists who challenged the norms of their time.

The Origins of an Unprecedented Race

The story of liz and nellie nellie bly and elizabeth bisland s rivalry begins in the 1880s, a period when women in journalism were still struggling for recognition. Nellie Bly, born Elizabeth Cochran, was already a well-known investigative reporter for the New York World. She had gained fame for her undercover work exposing the harsh conditions in mental asylums and her fearless reporting style. Meanwhile, Elizabeth Bisland was an accomplished writer and editor for the Cosmopolitan magazine, known for her literary flair and thoughtful essays. The idea to race around the world was inspired by Jules Verne's novel Around the World in Eighty Days. Bly's editor suggested she attempt to beat the fictional record by traveling the globe in less than 80 days. Almost simultaneously, Cosmopolitan decided to send Bisland on a similar mission, turning what might have been an individual adventure into a headline-grabbing competition.

The Context: Journalism and Adventure at the Turn of the Century

The late 19th century was a golden age for newspapers and magazines. The public was hungry for sensational stories, and journalists were pushing the boundaries of reporting. Adventure journalism, especially, appealed to readers fascinated by far-off places and daring exploits. For women like Bly and Bisland, this was a chance to prove their talents not just in writing but in courage and resourcefulness. Their race became a media spectacle, with newspapers tracking their progress and readers eagerly following updates. It was a rare moment when female journalists were at the forefront of international news coverage, challenging gender stereotypes and expanding the possibilities for women in professional fields.

Liz and Nellie Nellie Bly's Journey: A Closer Look

Nellie Bly's journey around the world was nothing short of extraordinary. She departed New York on November 14, 1889, armed with nothing but her wit, determination, and a keen sense of adventure. Her route took her across the United States to San Francisco, then by ship to Japan, Hong Kong, Singapore, Ceylon (now Sri Lanka), the Suez Canal, and finally across Europe back to New York.

Challenges and Triumphs Along the Way

Bly's trip was fraught with challenges, from navigating unfamiliar cultures and languages to managing tight schedules and transportation delays. Yet, her resilience shone through. She famously traveled in third-class accommodations to save money and blend in with ordinary travelers, a strategy that helped her avoid unnecessary attention. One of the remarkable aspects of Bly's journey was her ability to maintain communication with the press, sending dispatches that kept readers hooked. Despite the physical and mental toll, she completed the trip in 72 days, 6 hours, and 11 minutes, beating the fictional record and setting a real-world standard.

Elizabeth Bisland's Parallel Adventure

At the same time, Elizabeth Bisland embarked on her own race, departing just a few hours after Bly but heading westward, the opposite direction around the globe. While Bly took an easterly route, Bisland's journey was equally impressive, covering vast distances and facing her own set of obstacles.

Bisland's Style and Approach

Unlike Bly's more investigative and fast-paced reporting, Bisland's style was reflective and literary. She documented not just the logistics of travel but also the cultural nuances and personal reflections on the places she visited. This gave her reports a different flavor, appealing to readers who appreciated a more contemplative take on the adventure. Bisland's journey took her across the United States to the West Coast, then across the Pacific Ocean, through Asia, the Middle East, and Europe, before returning to New York. She completed her trip in 76 days, a remarkable accomplishment in its own right, though she arrived after Bly and thus was widely regarded as the runner-up.

The Historical Context of the Race Around the World

The late 1800s was a period marked by rapid technological progress and expanding global connectivity. The completion of the First Transcontinental Railroad in the United States and the advent of steamship travel shrank the world considerably, making the idea of traveling around the globe within a short timeframe a tantalizing prospect. Jules Verne's popular novel, "Around the World in Eighty Days," had already captured the public imagination, inspiring real-life attempts to mirror this fictional adventure. In this environment, both Nellie Bly and Elizabeth Bisland were commissioned by competing newspapers to embark on a race to circle the globe faster than anyone before. Nellie Bly, a trailblazing investigative journalist for Joseph Pulitzer's New York World, was known for her fearless reporting and her exposé on mental health institutions. Elizabeth Bisland, a literary critic and writer for the Cosmopolitan magazine owned by the Hearst Corporation, was her counterpart in this high-profile challenge.

The Figures Behind the Journey: Nellie Bly and Elizabeth Bisland

Nellie Bly: The Fearless Pioneer

Born Elizabeth Cochran in 1864, Nellie Bly quickly gained recognition for her groundbreaking investigative journalism. Her undercover work at the Women's Lunatic Asylum on Blackwell's Island catapulted her into the limelight and demonstrated her willingness to push boundaries. When the opportunity arose to attempt a world circumnavigation, Bly embraced the challenge with characteristic vigor. Her journey began on November 14, 1889, when she departed from New York on the steamer

Augusta Victoria, aiming to beat the fictional record of 80 days. Bly's route was meticulously planned to maximize speed, utilizing the era's fastest modes of transportation available.

Elizabeth Bisland: The Literary Rival

Elizabeth Bisland, though less known today than Bly, was an accomplished writer and editor at Cosmopolitan. Her assignment was to undertake a similar race but traveling westward, opposite Bly's eastward direction. This strategic contrast added an intriguing dimension to the competition, with each woman traversing different continents and facing unique challenges. Bisland's journey commenced shortly after Bly's, and her approach was more measured and reflective, often incorporating literary observations and cultural insights into her dispatches. Her style contrasted with Bly's more action-oriented reportage, reflecting their distinct journalistic philosophies.
